"In Race To Win" Says Dr. Barron, Denying Switch To Woolever

Addison Congressional Candidate Denounces Efforts of Political Opposition to Obstruct His Candidacy Emphasizes Bank Issue — "NRA Illogical," He Contends—Clarifies Dry Stand, War Debts, Etc. —Favors County Home Rule.

"For once and all may I emphatically deny all rumors to the effect that I have withdrawn or plan to withdraw in favor of the Rev. Woolever," declared Dr. W. E. Barron of Addison, who is opposed by Sterling Cole of Bath, Willson Campbell of Bath and the Rev. Harry E. Woolever of Candor in the race for the Republican congressional nomination from the 37th district, in a statement to this paper. "Let me also say that there is absolutely no community of purpose between the Rev. Woolever or any other candidate, and myself. I am in this race to win and I expect to win, no matter what rumors or inferences to the contrary may be circulated through the district by henchmen of an entrenched political machine which is desperately striving through every device of political trickery to block my candidacy."

The doctor's unequivocal statement was issued in answer to current reports in various parts of the district that as an active supporter of dry candidates in previous campaigns he had entered the present race only to withhold the support of dry voters in Steuben county who might otherwise be attracted to the banner of Mr. Cole; also that he either had withdrawn in favor of the Rev. Woolever or planned to do so in the near future.

Dr. Barron has been conducting an energetic campaign and many ardent supporters are advancing his candidacy in all parts of the district. He has identified himself with retention of the recently enacted Federal Bank Deposit Insurance law as a principal campaign issue. "I am strongly in favor of this splendid law which guarantees the bank depositor against loss," he has repeatedly emphasized.

Pierce-Selleck Reunion Held

Thirty-third Convening Takes Place at Home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy George in Sabinsville — Poem Written by Mrs. Jane Pierce Traces Family History.

The thirty-third annual reunion of the Pierce-Selleck families was held Wednesday afternoon, August 15th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy George in Sabinsville, Pa. Charles Turnbull of Canisteo was re-elected president of the family organization for another year. Other officers were also re-elected as follows: vice-president, Harvey George of Westfield; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Luella Freeman of Addison.

A poem entitled "The Tribe of Sellecks", composed by Mrs. Jane Pierce, was read by Mrs. Lincoln Lounsberry. This poem traced the early history of the family in this region. Two verses in the poem tell of the coming of the original John Selleck, nearly a century and a quarter ago. The verses read:

"In eighteen hundred twelve
To Canisteo there came
A stripling youth scarce twenty-one,
And Selleck was his name,
Two brothers and one sister,
He left in Moravia town,
Noah, John and Betsy at home,
His father's name was John.

Grandfather Baker had three sons,
Seven daughters and a wife
And these to save from tommyhawk
And Indian scalping knife
Young Selleck offered his strong arm
His rifle and his life
And to make protection sure,
He made Weathy Ann his wife".

It was announced at the reunion gathering that twin sons had been born on December 24, 1933 to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cole of Hornell.

An enjoyable program of entertainment featured by recitations given by Leonard and Marilyn George and a story related by two little girls, Idabelle Draper and Marjorie Gunn, entitled "Stay in Your Own Backyard". State Inspectors Praise Supt. Hardenbrook's Administration Of the Steuben County Home

The following annual report of the State Department of Social Welfare on the condition of Steuben County Home, reflects great credit upon the administration of E. Ray Hardenbrook. Readers will note the inspectors could find only two things to criticize regarding the Home, and neither of these criticisms related to management. For several years the State Department has attempted to force Steuben County to build a new infirmary which is the principal point brought up against our care of the poor in this report.

Superintendent Hardenbrook's administration has been classed as No. 1, and efficient. Lack of criticism of his administration by the state inspectors must be regarded as strong praise. Mr. Hardenbrook is seeking another term as Superintendent, and this commendatory report should greatly strengthen his

Hi-Lights and Shadows of the Week's News

John Labatt, a wealthy Canadian brewer, was being held yesterday for a ransom of $15,000. Relatives of Labatt were reported to have drawn that sum from a London, Ont., bank, ready to pay the abductors. The brewer is said to be in double danger, as he suffers from a heart ailment which might be aggravated by the excitement. This is the first big Canadian kidnapping, and officials are endeavoring to connect the abductors with American snatch rings.

Westerner Reports Drought Havoc

Neosho, Missouri, is a county seat town of 5,015 population, situated in the southwest corner of the state; 15 miles east of the Oklahoma state line; 28 miles north of the Arkansas state line and 28 miles southeast of the Kansas state line. It is in the foothills of the Ozark Mountains and is known as the "Haven of the Ozarks in the Land of a Million Smiles." The principal industries are farming, poultry raising, fruit, canning, feed grinding, flour mills, ice cream and butter factories, milk condensery, dairying, nursery, chick hatcheries, broom factory, garment factory, and plow factory and foundry. The homes are mostly owned by the occupants and are from four to ten rooms, well kept, neat lawns and streets, mostly paved.

This is a picture of the town that is visited by thousands of vacationists as they come into the cool refreshing Ozarks to fish, swim, camp or just to have a god time every vacation season. A more perfect spot would be hard to find. Many tourists are so sure no better place could be found that they return each vacation and spend the whole time there. Others like the pure, sparkling spring water and and beautiful surroundings so well that they move there to make it their permanent home.

Now during this most severe drought this beautiful little town is suffering from extreme heat and dry hot winds. There has been practically no rain since May 4th and excerpts from the following letter recently written by a resident will picture the conditions as they

Judge E. C. Smith Host on Saturday at Farm on the Goodhue — Speakers Include Prof. Goodman, Prof. Brownell and C. R. White — High School Band Scores Hit—"Tommy Hal" Again Eclipses Field—Armstrong Also Repeats.

Steuben County farmers and dairymen, their relatives and friends, gathered six thousand strong at the farm of Judge Edwin C. Smith, three miles from Addison, last Saturday morning and afternoon for their annual county picnic and dairy field day. "The biggest and best dairy field day ever held in the state", was the enthusiastic comment of visiting agricultural leaders at the close of the day's events.

The program got underway at 10:30 in the morning when entrants in the Steuben County Horseshoe Pitching tournament were lined up to start the elimination which finally resulted in the crowning of Fred Armstrong as king of the ovals for another twelve months. From then on, with Old Sol beaming his happiest, the program ran off without an untoward happening.

Loud speakers on a knoll across the highway from the farm residence carried the voices of speakers and announcers to all parts of the picnic grounds. Every word spoken into the microphone rang clear as a bell to the most distant bystander in each direction. A. W. Norris of Kanona was master of ceremonies.

Judge Smith

In his welcoming address, Judge Edwin C. Smith, stressed the value of farm organizations and the need of organized effort in solving the problems of agriculture. He commended highly the work of the Farm Bureau.

CONGRESSIONAL "STORIES"

The primary battle this year for nomination of Congressman on the Republican ticket, has been conducted for the most part in a vigorous, above-board manner by the four candidates in the race. Careful analysis of the race thus far, would indicate the candidates themselves are steering ethical political courses to make this competition a dignified contest for votes, in keeping with the general high plane of the Republican party.

As candidates for office in as widespread a district as the 37th cannot do all the chores of campaigning personally, work delegated to others may become garbled, and party workers in their zeal sometimes distort facts. This has already happened. One instance of distorted facts has come so straight to the editors of this publication, that in a spirit of fair-play to all the candidates and all the voters, it is right the truth be uttered.

Whatever the source may be, the story has circulated widely in Elmira, and possibly in other parts of the district, that Dr. Barron is not in the Congressional race for the benefit of his own candidacy. The tale bearers falsely state, the Addison doctor entered the contest for the purpose of drawing dry votes away from Mr. Cole to Mr. Woolever, the latter having been known before repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment as a Prohibition worker. This is a gross misrepresentation which can only be interpreted as an attempt to discredit either or both, Woolever and Barron. Its falsity is proven to the writer of this editorial beyond refutation, because long before Mr. Woolever entered the race, Dr. Barron told the writer in confidence, that he was considering running for the office. And no man, having ever known the doctor, would ever hint he would "pull chestnuts" for Mr. Woolever.

This suggestion of collusion between two men seeking office, is too discredible to have originated with any one of the four gentlemen in the race. The wet and dry question is not an issue in this campaign, and any person trying to stir prejudice among Republican voters by it this fall, is no fair and square adherent of the Republican party.

Any impartial person who has watched the campaign thus far, must concede the four candidates are intensely interested in their own nomination. Each believes he has a fighting chance to win. Never, to the writer's knowledge, since direct primaries were established, have the Republican voters of the 37th district had as good an oportunity to vote for the man of their choice, as they have this year. They can chose a standard bearer from a group composed of a doctor, a lawyer, a banker and a minister. The voters should be glad that for once, party organizations have not entirely "handpicked" one or two candidates to the exclusion of all other aspirants to the office. It is an open race, and should remain a fair one that will leave no rancor within the party at its end

Another story going the rounds in the other end of the district, is apparently designed to assist the candidate of the Democrats after the present primary campaign ends. The story is in effect that Mr. Cole has secured the endorsement of a large number of committeemen in the Republican organization, who are working exclusively for his nomination. That in case one of the three other candidates wins the nomination the Republican organization will "lay down" on the job, allowing the Democratic nominee to ride into office through default of disgruntled committeemen.

This story should be spiked by the committee chairmen of the various counties in the district. If party government is to live—and no better form of government has ever been unfolded—it must live by the popular selection of candidates, within the parties. Direct party primaries were designated to protect the people from unwise selection of candidates by party organizations, and any county organization which attempts or threatens to usurp this Primary right of the voters, would be overstepping the bonds of its prescribed political powers.

When running for President, Al Smith labeled stories he could not put his finger on, "whispering campaigns." The term was badly overworked at the time and since, yet the thought is apt to return and automatically attach itself to any undercurrents now brought to the surface for inspection

Believing that statements which are brought out into the light of day through the public press, can no longer be bandied around mischievously from mouth to mouth, this publication is glad to stir the above "whispering" before the reading public. It is hoped and believed that every one of the four candidates in the race will desire that malicious, untrue statements that might be credited to them, be stopped upon conception.

YOUNG CITIZENS

Some months ago a law was enacted carrying a penalty of $100 fine for conviction of shooting a pigeon. The law came as a protective measure for pigeons, hunters of the latter sometimes shot the carrier pigeons, many of which are used for various purposes. As carrier pigeons will sometimes stop to rest with a flock of ordinary barn, or field pigeons, hunters of the latter sometimes shot the carriers, oblivious or careless of the fact they might be interrupting an important message.

A few days ago a group of Addison boys, armed with air-rifles (themselves illegal for use in the village) were seen firing upon some pigeons. When someone acquainted them with the fact the law provided a fine for shooting the birds, as a protection to the carrier pigeons, they willingly desisted from the sport. Although quite small boys, they knew what carrier pigeons were for and could appreciate the value of such birds, and the danger that they might mistake them.

Boys when taken collectively and untutored, often seem like regular little imps of Satan. But they usually have a reasonable side to which one can appeal, thus turning their energies away from destructive channels. More attention to this part of their bringing up could profitably be spent by parents, and teachers as well. Boy scouting, in its ideal form, is supposed to cultivate the helpful, manly sides of boys' natures and teach them much of value of nature study.

Scouting, however, does not begin until boys are twelve years old or more, and often the lads fall into ways of mischief long before that age, which makes scouting seem too tame for their fancy. It is too bad forces which could mold good citizenship cannot be brought to bear upon boys in the earlier, formative years. What a marvlous country this could become in two decades if all the lads from six years up, could be gathered into some form of Young America clubs, having the primary principle of instilling good and useful citizenship among the youth. If lads, always gregarious by nature, could be taught collectively the thrilling things of Nature and science, and the unfolding adventure of mature life just ahead. If they could be kindled with the desire to become useful citizens, and permeated with the hope of rightly administering their franchise privilege upon attaining maturity. If the whole idea could be drafted into the form of a great game, with each lad looking upon himself as an important player. If the big things of life could be made to look as big as they are and the small things of life made to look as small as they are. If the leaders of the movement could be fired with as much zeal as the boys, then indeed would America have a mob movement which could sweep all the petty problems of man from us.

BOOTSTRAP MEASURES TABOO IN CANADA

Babson, one of our leading economists, in a recent article pointed out the fact that Canada is undergoing a steady, healthy recovery from the depression by sound means. During the past year and one-half the Canadian government has been entreated by some of its citizens to adopt some of the revolutionary tactics of the U. S., such as NRA, AAA and widespread public spending. Leaders in the Dominion have steadfastly refused to adopt these programs, and their foresight is now reflected in a type of recovery which will, in the long run, take them much more rapidly into prosperity.

Gains in this country have been sporadic, and followed by retreats, while in the country to the north business has taken on a steady, healthy upward wave which is bringing the Canadians positively nearer normal times and conditions. The Babson chart shows that busines in the U. S. last week was 13 per cent less than one year ago, when the impetus of the Roosevelt New Deal policies were most strongly felt.

The latest Administration move, nationalizing silver, is but another of the many experimental attempts to urge the country into a buying spree, by artificially inflating our coinage metals. Some economists believe that the inflation crowd will soon persuade the President to go all the way they demand, issuing paper money, thus inflating our currency in circulation and causing a rush to spend money before it decreases further in value.

All moves are nothing more or less than "stunts" of a horde of experimentalists who refuse to admit the impossibility of a nation or an individual lifting itself by the bootstraps. It is hard to admit, but our neighbor to the north has been able to choose the wiser course, and in some measure will now benefit by the great U. S. mistake of destroying part of our wheat crop in the face of a drought.

FAST TRAVELING OFFICIALS

Probably no Administration in history has ever sent its high officials out over the country so much just prior to an election. Wallace, Tugwell, Ezekiel and Davis of the Agriculture Department have either made or planned swings. Farley and Johnson are completing their stumping tour ahead of the President's. Secretary Roper went to Alaska, Secretary Coummings is headed for Hawaii, Secretary Dern to Panama, Relief Chief Harry Hopkins to Europe on government business, etc. Meanwhile the "second team" was running the show.

A fire truck from Hammondsport finally arrived and extinguished the blaze and no damage was done the car except for scorched paint.

CANISTEO — The Canisteo village is considering another local TERA project beginning October 1, the Federal government will pay all the cost of material instead of the village or locality having to bear that expense. The proposed porposition here is to clean out the ditch along Pine Street and link it with the drainage ditch that was recently completed. This would not entail any expense to the village since it would be a 100% labor proposition. Between fifteen and twenty would be employed on such a project, should it be approved by the TERA authorities.

Frank C. Kittel, who has been a shoe dealer in Canisteo for the past eight years, is about to close his store in this community. He will open a store in Hamondsport about the 20th of August. Excellent inducements and an attractive opening have induced him to leave Canisteo.

Federal Tax Burden Climbs 65 per cent

Washington — The speed with which billion-dollar appropriations become new worries for the tax burdened public was brought sharply to the front in the announcement by the Department of Internal Revenue that its tax collections for the fiscal year just closed increased 65 per cent over those for the preceding year.

Internal revenue taxes for last year totaled $2,672,239,000, compared with $1,619,839,000 the preceding year, a gain of $1,052,400,000 or 65 per cent, according to the official announcement. And collections for the last fiscal year did not take into account the new funds that must be provided to meet the billions of dollars appropriated by Congress during its last session, with increased taxes burdening recovery already.

Governor Lehman Has Broken Silence and Will Run Again

Albany, August 14 — Governor Lehman did the expected thing last week when he announced his candidacy for a second term. He said he had a "strong personal desire to return to private life," and undoubtedly that is true. But there were several reasons why he could not well do that. It is admitted that his handling of the State's affairs has resulted in a financial situation no better than that left by Governor Roosevelt, in spite of the increased taxes imposed in the meantime, and to have voluntarily stepped out would not have looked well. There is no question that he has been strongly urged by leading Democrats to run again, for he is a very wealthy man and has been most liberal in campaign contributions. His refusal to be a candidate would have precipitated a row over the nomination in the Democratic party. And finally neither Mr. Lehman nor his friends relished the idea of his going down in history as a "one-term Governor." These are among the factors which led him to decide to again make the fight, in face of the fact that his first term has greatly weakened him in public opinion.

Sportsman as Well as Statesman

The official roster of the Legislature give only the vocation of the members, though their avocations might at time prove fully as interesting. There, for example, is Senator Frederick H. Bontecou, Republican, recently elected by a whooping majority from President Roosevelt's home district. He is put down as a farmer, and he really has a very fine farm at Millbrook in Dutchess County. But he has a national, even international, reputation as a horseman, and is the only American ever to win the King George trophy for riding. Senator Lee, Lockport manufacturer, is also a great rider, but through the air! He flies back and forth between Albany and Lockport and has made several transcontinental trips.

More Glory Gone to the Head

One of the early acts of the new Federal Administration which took control on March 4, 1933, had to do with the new Albany postoffice. The building had reached only the blue print stage then, and everything concerning it had been done by the Hoover Administration through Secretary of the Treasury Mills and Postmaster-General Brown. Their names were quite properly to go on the cornerstone of the building, and the drawings so showed. As soon as the Democrats got control the drawings were altered and the names of Secretary of the Treasury Woodin and Postmastr-General Farley, neither of whom had anything to do with the building, were put on. Later the same thing was done at Rochester and other places. Now an advanced step has been taken. At Bridgeport, Conn., where the cornerstone has been long in place and the new building is ready to be dedicated the names of Mr. Mills and the Supervising Architect of the Treasury have been chiseled off and those of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Postmaster-General Farley put on instead.

Jimmy Is Not Forgotten

Dapper Jimmy Walker, former Mayor of New York City, may think he is completely forgotten back in his home state, but he isn't. A Federal Grand Jury has spent many days looking into his income tax dealings with Uncle Sam, and upon results found will probably depend just how soon Jimmy comes back to the city whose idol he once was. That is said to be the chief thing that is keeping him away.

U. S. School Teaches Radicalism

New York newspapers are responsible for the statement that a school in that city which is maintained by the U. S. Government through the Federal Emergency Relief Association is teaching radical doctrines to its pupils. The salaries of 15 teachers are paid by the government and the 75 students receive lunches and $8 a week from the CWA. "Students, questioned about the schools curriculum, asserted they are given socalled revolutionary material for study and also have been told that the Government's economic system should be supplanted by Socialism." In this connection it is very interesting to note that the Legislature again, by almost unanimous vote in both houses, passed the bill of Assemblyman Ives, Republican, requiring teachers to take an oath of allegiance to the Constitution and sent it to the Governor, who had vetoed it at the regular session.

We Have 25,000 Candidates

A few may have been missed in the counting, and possibly some who started have quit, but a careful estimate indicates that just about 25,000 people are at the moment candidates for jobs in this State, ranging from constable to governor. But several states have more. Indiana reports 36,350; Minnesota 30,000; California exactly 27,473. All told there are about 300,000 citizens trying to get on the public payroll by way of the ballot, as many as 35 seeking nomination for a single office in the Hoosier State. In Mondata one citizen in every ten is a candidate for something. None of the prizes sought, however, equals in salary the $25,000 Governorship of this State. This army of candidates is the greatest in history. Some probably have gone in because they have no other employment. Others feel very strongly on one side or other of current questions and want to show thir opinions by their stand.

Politicians Pondering State Aid for Schools

Albany, August 15, State aid for schools has been plaguing the Democrats all through the extra session of the legislature. They have wanted to go along with the Republicans, as a political gesture, and pass the $14,000,000 school appropriation bill of Assemblyman Fred L. Porter of Essex, but Governor Lehman's insistence that there should be a tax measure with it has been a millstone around their necks.

The Democrats are trying to shied the Governor omitted it from his under the constitution of initiating all taxes necessary to balance the budget. The budget now is enormously out of balance and will be a lot more by the end of the year.

If the governor and his Democratic legislators could force the Republicans to levy a state school tax at this session, it would relieve Mr. Lehman of that much of his responsibility for raising about $100,000,000 by new taxes next winter.

The Republicans passed the Porter bill in the Assembly last week, and it was promptly blocked and sent to the committee in the Democratic Senate. The appropriation is called for under the laws of the state, but the Governor ommitted it from his budget this year. Now it will be added to the already huge dificit for which the Governor is responsible.

Without the full legal quotas of state aid all municipalities and school districts whould be forced to levy new local taxes. The Governor would rather have them do it than do it himself. Then he could accuse the local governments of being extravagant.

STATE OF NEW YORK — DEPARTMENT OF SOCIAL WELFARE

Report Of General Inspection

Improvements and Changes

1. A second boiler, an iron fireman and new safty valves and thermostat and new return line have been added to the central heating plant, a new fire pot to one furnace in the men's infirmary and a new heater and furnace connection for the hot water supply; a larger bakeoven in the central kitchen.

2. The buildings, excepting men's infirmary and barn, have been repainted also the women's quarters over the garage.

3. Dining tables are being covered with cemented linoleum.

4. The domestic laundry room has been made into a fourth office.

5. The mountain brook behind the buildings has been deepened and walled. (A relief project).

Summary of Needs and recomendations

1. The need for a suitable infirmary becomes more urgent.

2. Storage space and lockers are inadequate especially in the men's building.

Plant

The two dormitory buildings and the office building, which has men's dormitories on the second floor, have in recent years been rebuilt inside for fire protection, sanitation and comfort, so that they are generally satisfactory. There is no infirmary for women. The men's infirmary an old and dilapidated wooden structure, has been subject to criticism for many years and was finally condemned by the Department. The proposal to erect an infirmary in order to provide decently for needy invalids and save for the taxpayers the large sums that are being spent for the protracted maintenance of convalescent and chronic cases in general hospitals, should be pressed to accomplishment.

Farm

The County property here includes a large modern jail and a tuberculosis sanatorium, and garden area and dairy herd and equipment sufficient to supply the three institutions; there are in all about 220 acres, of which 140 are tillable. Pasture area is inadequate.

There is a large, modern barn with stables for cattle and horses in the basement. An old henhouse, in which the poultry developed tuberculosis, should and doubtless will be demolished and replaced, and the soil will be treated.

There are five horses, forty-five hogs and pigs, no poultry, forty-one head of cattle, of which thirty are milking cows or soon to be. These cattle receive frequent tests for all diseases.

Vegetables are furnished to the jail and sanatorium as they suggest. During the year 25,970 quarts of milk went to the sanatorium. Amount of milk and number of eggs obtained were not ascertained. The farm is operated more cheaply than formerly.

Fire Protection

The three reconstructed buildings have fire-resistant floor surface, interior stairways and enclosures, steel lath, but some old wooden lath, joists, stringers, trim and underflooring. Interior stairways are near the middle; the women's has an outside wooden stairway at each end, the men's and the office building have one on the far end; these stairs are reached through doors. The second floor of the garage, which is of wood and is often occupied by young women pregnant or with babies, has but one means of decent, an enclosed wooden stairway at one end.

There are six fire hydrants and 400 feet of new standard hose. Water comes from the Bath system through a six-inch main at 65 pounds pressure, and water in a hillside reservoir is kept in reserve for fire protection. On each floor of occupied buildings is a soda-acid extinguisher, recharged last July.

A siren and a telephone on a private line are available as alarms, and in Bath a special number be blown on the fire siren. The men's infirmary has two furnaces in the basement, and the building and old electric wiring are fire hazards. The two boilers of the central heating plant are in the basement of the women's building; they have asbestos coating, and the wooden ceiling is covered with asbestos sheets.

Administration

As the Commissioner maintains his office at the Home he is to be classed as an actual resident superintendent. A committee of the Board of Supervisors supervises accounts and any proposed improvements; their visits may average two in three months.

One reason for the employment of inmates in the men's hospital is that the accomodations and surroundings there are not attractive. Conditions in general indicate porper care of inmates and intelligent management.

Sanitation and Hygiene

Drainage, sewage disposal and water supply, toilet, bath and lavatory facilities, hot water supply, interiors, beds and bedding are satisfactory. Individual steel lockers are provided in the women's and office building but not in the men's building, where they are greatly needed; inmates' belongings have been stored over the woodshed and around the men's beds. Space for bedding and supplies is also deficient. Bathing regulations, towels, wash cloths and barber service are adequate, but roller towels are still in use in the men's lavatories, in the large building. Soft coal was used the past winter for heating but may not be used again.

Care of the Sick

So far as the resident management is concerned the care provided for the sick and afflicted is about as good as possible. A registered nurse, capable, thorough and well spoken of by the in mates, looks after patiens of both sexes. There is a night attendant for the women; a girl inmate helps daytimes. The attendants in the men's infirmary are unpaid inmates, but a general utility man, the nurse's husband, serves as head attendant. One helper is on night duty.

Divisions and Welfare

Religious services are held each Sunday in three buildings. A priest comes at stated intervals and on calls. The two dormitory buildings have adequate ilving rooms and verandas; equipment includes radios. Inmates walk or ride to Bath and are taken on special occasions. No occupational instruction.

Summary Of Needs And Recommendations

1. The need for a suitable infirmary has become more urgent.

2. Lockers and storage facilities are inadequate, especially in the men's building.

Woolever Says AAA Hurts Our Eastern Farmers

H. E. Woolever, one of the four Republican candidates for Congress from the 37th District of New York, declared before a farmers' gathering Saturday night at Tompkins Corners, Chemung County, that there would never be a return of prosperity in Central New York until the farmers were given a square deal. He said in part: "The farmers of the East are being taxed into bankruptcy to give aid to the large Western farmers. The proportion so far has been a tax of $60.00 upon New York State in processing taxes for every one returned to New York farmers.

"The AAA is an effort to boost prices which consumers must pay", said Mr. Woolever, "and the farmers are consumers. They are bidden by the government to pay a tax upon the milk they grow, the pork they raise, and then to pay more for the food, fertilizer and flour they must buy. One boot is taken away from them and they are asked to raise themselves by pulling on the straps of the remaining boot.

"The program of destruction which has been carried on by the administration is one of scarcity and hardship for the nation. A plan of distribution of equitable division of profits will make the farmer independent and successful again".

Economy is another point featured in Dr. Barron's platform. "I am not in favor of handing out to members of the legion a large part of the goverment income at the present time. I stand for fair play for veterans and for everyone alike," he says, and with regard to the NRA he adds, "I contend that the NRA is illogical, that it conflicts with the law of supply and demand and that it can only lead to greater monoply and the elimination of the small producer."

With reference to his position on the wet and dry question, Dr. Barron has said, "I was strongly in favor of the preservation of the eighteenth amendment, largely because its continuance meant a greater demand for milk from our dairies, and, as a consequence, better nourished children throughout our nation. I now consider this question settled by vote of the people, but in the way of constructive legislation I would strongly favor compulsory education in our schools with regard to the harmfulness of alcoholic beverages."

War debts is still another question on which the doctor makes his position clear. "Let us have no more slicing of war debts", he emphasizes. "These obligations have been compromized enough. We should let these debts stand as they are and classify the defaulting nations as repudiators. Their refusal to pay may be the best insurance we shall have against other and still more costly and destructive wars".

Dr. Barron has been a practicing physician in Addison for forty-three years. He was born on a farm on the Addison-Rathbone highway, a descendant of early settlers in that region. He attended Addison High School and Alfred University and in 1891 was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Baltimore, Md. He served as mayor of the village of Addison for several years and during his encumbency a new city hall was constructed by day work instead of a contract plan. This policy, efficiently administered, resulting in a saving of approximately $20,000 to the taxpayers of the community. He also advanced and ardently supported a plan whereby the municipality would acquire possession of the water system. When submitted to the electorate, however, the proposition was voted down, much to the present regret of many who then voted against it. The coronorship of Steuben County is another position with which he has been honored.

Dr. Barron has been active in many ways in trying to keep down the enormous high cost of government. He was decidedly opposed to the proposed plan of constructing a second armory in Steuben County for the reason that in these trying times it could be considered nothing but a luxury, unneccessary and uncalled for. Action on the matter was delayed for a year or more and finally, when the proposition was revived, a saving of approximately one-half was effected in the purchase price of the site alone. The doctor has consistently advocated that the money proposed for this purpose could be used to far better advantage by lessening bonded indebtedness.

Reforestation is a subject in which Dr. Barron was interested many years ago. In 1914 or thereabouts he appeared before the board of supervisors to advocate a county reforestation project. Nothing, however, was ever done about it.

Together with his two sons Dr. Barron volunteered for service in the World War. For seven months he was located in the medical department at Camp Gordon, Georgia. As a war veteran and a member of the American Legion he has advocated before Legion and veterans' groups that they should not ask for any favors from the government at this time, because they might thereby jeopardize the benefits which they already receive. It has also been the doctor's contention that real patriotism upon the part of veterans would be revealed by refraining from present demands upon the government which might be to their future interest.

County home rule is an established policy of local interest in which Dr. Barron is a firm beliver. "I am in favor of home rule for the county, Albany having no strings attached to any county project", he has declared. "By weeding out the spendthrifts in county government we would need no change from our present state laws regarding towns and counties. It is my belief that Albany or Washington having strings attached to welfare or contract work is impractical and wrong in principle. Necessary welfare work should be carried on by the community with the aid of state or federal loans if required."

Dr. Barron is a member of the county, state and national branches of the American Medical Association and has served as president of the county society. At the present time he is health officer of the village of Addison, Rathbone and Cameron townships. He was married in early life to Miss Julia Blakeslee, daughter of Professor David A. Medical Centers To Improve Health Of Rural Communities Contemplated

Committee on the Costs of Medical Care in Final Report Recommends Basic Changes in Present System

IN order to improve the health of people living in small towns and rural communities, the establishment of "medical centers" to make available complete and modern services is contemplated in the recommendations of the Committee on the Costs of Medical Care, made public recently at the National Conference on the Costs of Medical Care held at the New York Academy of Medicine.

Where complete medical centers are impossible, the Committee urges that partial centers or "medical stations" be established and that specific arrangements be made for utilizing the more complete facilities of city medical centers for treatment of serious cases.

The "medical center" in a small town would consist of a small hospital, in or adjacent to which would be the offices of the community's general practitioners, specialists, dentists, and the nursing organization. The hospital would provide laboratory, X-ray, pharmaceutical, and ambulance service. Professional matters would be under the control of the professional personnel while financial responsibility and decision of questions of public policy would rest with representatives of the public. A "medical station," according to the report, would be a small building housing one or two physicians, a dentist and a few visiting nurses or trained nurse-midwives, who together would serve a rural area.

The Committee's report also suggested other basic changes in the provision of medical care to rural communities. Among them are the following:

1. That rural areas or those of low economic resources, where suitable medical care is not now obtainable at a reasonable cost, should subsidize physicians or employ salaried physicians to furnish general medical service to residents. Where the economic condition of the community permits, the Committee recommends that this plan be extended to cover hospital service, public health nursing, dentistry and pharmacy.

2. That the State and Federal Governments should help local governments maintain a basic minimum of good medical care in those rural communities with such low per capita incomes that the community is unable to defray the cost of adequate medical services either through individual payments or through local tax funds.

3. That nurse-midwives, working in conjunction with skilled obstetricians, be especially trained to provide proper maternity service to economically weak or widely scattered groups of patients.

Five Basic Recommendations

The Committee's five basic recommendations (signed by a substantial majority of its 48 members) for all communities, urban and rural, are:

1. That medical care be furnished largely by organized groups of physicians, dentists, nurses, pharmacists and other associated personnel, centered around a hospital; and rendering home, office and hospital care.

2. That all basic public health services be extended until they are available to the entire population, according to its needs.

3. That the costs of medical care be placed on a group payment basis, through the use of insurance, taxation, or both methods, without precluding the continuation of the individual fee basis for those who prefer it.

4. That a specific organization be formed in every community or State for the "study, evaluation and coordination of medical service."

5. That the professional education of physicians, dentists, pharmacists and nurses be reoriented to accord more closely with present needs, and that educational facilities be provided to train three new types of workers: nursing attendants, nurse-midwives and trained hospital and clinical administrators.

Two minority reports signed by nine and two members respectively were also written. Of these, the principal one, although in general accord with three of the majority recommendations, opposed the organization of medical services and group payment for medical service.

Medical Center is "Keystone"

The development in each city or large town of one or more hospitals into a "community medical center" is described as the "keystone" of the Committee's five recommendations. These centers would provide complete medical services in return for weekly or monthly fees, with, when necessary, some supplementary support from tax funds.

The personal relations between patient and practitioner should be carefully maintained in such centers, the Committee says. Such organization, it is asserted, would be fairer to practitioners than the present system because it would provide them with higher average incomes and would give the largest rewards to those with the greatest experience and ability.

The recommendations in general, the report states, provide for the development of existing machinery rather than the construction of an entirely new organization.

These recommendations were formulated by the Committee as a result of five years of exhaustive study, in both urban and rural areas, of the problem of how to provide adequate, scientific medical service to all people.

Among the rural sections studied were: Shelby County, Indiana; San Joaquin County, California; the State of Vermont; and three representative Southern counties.

Salaried Doctors System Successful In Rural Saskatchewan

In twenty rural communities of Saskatchewan, Canada, another section studied, the people employ salaried physicians to give them medical care. The salaries, ranging from $3,000 to $5,000 or more a year, are taken from taxation and amount to about $7.50 to $10.00 per family each year. The system has proven highly satisfactory to both physicians and patients and has been extended steadily.

The Committee's rural studies revealed the following facts and conclusions:

1. Medical practitioners and medical facilities are practically unavailable in some rural areas, largely because of the high costs for mileage.

2. The average income of the rural practitioners is less than one-half the average for metropolitan physicians. Dental incomes show a similar disparity.

3. In most rural and semi-rural areas, the current expenditures for medical care are insufficient to insure even approximately adequate service; to support necessary facilities; or to provide satisfactory remuneration to the practitioners.

4. More opportunity for post-graduate study should be available for rural practitioners.

5. Less than 35 cents per capita is spent annually for county and rural health work, although a comprehensive public health program in rural areas would require approximately $2.50 per capita.

The resolution was tabled pending further investigation.

A second resolution introduced by Mr. Hart had to do with the bond of a former city official in Corning which was inadequate to cover a shortage of dog funds formerly in the hands of this official. The supervisor moved that the county accept its pro rata share of such funds as provided by the bond. The resolution was adopted.

A resolution authorizing immediate steps to correct alleged pollution of the waters of the Canisteo and Tioga rivers was introduced at Monday's meeting of the board of supervisors by Supervisor Rhinehart of Corning and was adopted by the board without a dissenting vote.

The resolution requests investigation of the cause of the alleged pollution which, it is claimed, has caused the death in both streams of fish in great numbers. The resolution also calls for remedial action by the state department of health, the department of farms and markets and the conservation commission.

County money to the extent of $23,000 was authorized by the supervisors to be used with TERA funds for highway construction in the towns of Addison, Tuscarora, Lindley, Rathbone, Caton, Urbana, Troupsburg and Avoca. Highway projects under consideration in these townships will provide work for many unemployed. These projects are: Addison, Burr-Hollow road, 1.8 miles; Cameron, approach to river bridge, three-fifths mile; Tuscarora, Van Vleets-Clendenna road, one mile; Rathbone, Richtmyer road, 1.5 miles; Lindley, Church Creek road, 1.5 miles; Caton, Caton-Browntown Road, 1 1-3 miles; Troupsburg, Squab Hollow road, 1.5 miles; Avoca, West Creek-Wallace road, 1.4 miles; Urbana, Argus Hill road, 1.5 miles.

A resolution was introduced by Supervisor Aulls of Campbell, a member of the insurance committee, which provided that the total insurance on county buildings in Bath, Hornell, Corning and elsewhere be increased from $126,300 to $158,300. This increase, Mr. Aulls explained, is designed to approve a blanket policy covering all county properties. It would be prorated among all insurance agents of the county.

A resolution was adopted by the board advising the state department of public works that the county will at once undertake to secure rights of way over the "telegraph road" from Hornell to Stevens Gulch in the town of Howard, a distance of six miles. The road was recently approved by the state as a farm to market highway. It is expected that the rights of way will be obtained with but little delay and that the state will proceed at an early date with the actual work of construction. The expense of this project is estimated at between $6,000 and $7,000 per mile and would be defrayed entirely by the state.

Supervisor Hart introduced a resolution to the effect that property acquired by the county for tax arrearages in school district No. 9 in Corning is also in arrears in school taxes. His resolution specified that the county treasurer compute the unpaid school tax and that the district be compensated for the total.

A recent flood having carried away a bridge over Big Creek leading to the farm of Fred Burdette, it was decided by the supervisors that one of the several bridges displaced by more modern structures should be erected near the Burdette property.

Installation of fuel stokers in the Jail at Bath and the Corning court house came up for consideration and the subject was referred to the committee on county buildings for further investigation. It is stated that 175 tons of coal were used last year at the county jail and that the installation of fuel stokers would save approximately 30 per cent.

The supervisors authorized installation of filing cabinets in the national re-employment bureaus at Bath, Hornell and Corning. The sum of $3,000 was authorized for improvements at the forest nursery near Gang Mills.

The supervisors' county building committee was assured by Sheriff Fred Cornell that he believes the expense of installing a new range and additional refrigeration facilities in the kitchen at the new county jail can be provided from his regular appropriation without recourse to additional funds.

—Sept. 13, 1934

The public debt of the Nation and its subdivisions is enormous! The interest alone on this debt is billions of dollars each year.

Mr. Voter, yourself and family are obligated to pay this! Your children and grandchildren will be burdened by it! If it becomes much greater, repudiation may occur. Most any dire result may happen! The annual cost of the government is stupendous, not counting this debt!

Where are we rapidly drifting? Is it not time to place in office those who will say, STOP THIS WILD EXTRAVAGANCE!

* * * *

Have the Bankers, as a unit, cautioned and advised against more debt? No! They have eagerly oversubscribed for bond issues, national and municipal, and seem anxiously waiting for more! A Bankers' controlled Congress must not be allowed!

The Guarantee of Bank Deposits law must be sustained by your vote! Can this law be sustained by voting for Mr. Cole, the Bankers' candidate, or Mr. Campbell, the Banker, or the Rev. Woolever, the Washington lobbyist? No! But W. E. BARRON WOULD GO OVER THE TOP WITH A DETERMINATION TO WIN THIS BATTLE!

* * * *

This conflict is a challenge to the American people as to whether high finance rules this nation; whether the rights and the welfare of all, as guaranteed by our Constitution, are to be protected and preserved.

I thank you,

Coliseum Will Be Named in Honor of Noted Farm Educator

Syracuse, Aug. 14—Wing Coliseum will be the official designation of the State Fair's great amphitheter, following approprate ceremonies of dedication as a striking feature of this year's Exposition, September 1 to 8 inclusive. Prof. Henry Hiram Wing, in whose honor the Coliseum is being named, has rendered distinguished service to the live stock interest of the State and Nation for a span of many years. For forty years, he was actively connected with the State Experimental Station and the State College of Agriculture. As head of the Animal Husbandry Department at Cornell for a large part of this long time of service, his work, both directly and through the thousands of students who gained knowledge and inspiration under his teaching, he had a profound influence upon the development of the dairy industry throughout this country and in many foreign lands.

Upon his retirement from active teaching in 1928, his work was given recognition by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, which honored him by election to its presidency.

In view of this long term of service to the cause of better live stock, it is very fitting that the Coliseum, where the cream of the breeds are annually put on display, should be named in his honor.

A beautiful bronze plaque, commemorating the occasion and setting forth the significance, will be unveiled on Tuesday, September 4, at 1:00 P. M. The importance with which the ceremony is regarded is shown by the fact that Dr. Frank P. Graves, president of the University of New York, will act as master of ceremonies. Commissioner of Agriculture and Markets, Charles H. Baldwin, will appear on the program, while the presentation address will be made by Owen D. Young.

No individual in private life in America today commands a wider respect nor greater attention among all classes than Mr. Young, and the opportunity to hear him speak on a subject that lies so close to his heart will be a rare treat. It is anticipated that the huge Wing Coliseum will be filled to its capacity for the occasion, not only because of Prof. Wing's wide personal popularity and the fitness of the honors to be bestowed, but also because of the international eminence of those who are to take part in the program.

The ceremonies are scheduled to take place just following the noon intermission in the judging program, with the great class of Holstein aged cows to parade before the judge immediately following.

Many new and striking features have been arranged for New York's 94th Annual State Fair, but this program on Tuesday will easily be one of the high spots from the standpoint of all lovers of fine live stock.

Pools for Home Grounds

By DONALD BUSHEY

No amount of depression or hard times has affected, or can effect, the desire of the people for beauty and for pleasant surroundings.

A pool adds to the beauty of gardens. A little hard work and a little mechanical ability enables anyone to have a water garden at small cost. A pool must harmonize with the surroundings. A broken landscape can be used if a stream is desired, especially when rocks, boulders, and flat stones are placed in natural positions along its course.

Many properties have a natural setting for pools. A small stream, a near-by spring, or an overflow from a water-supply tank may furnish the water, anl a litle grading may form the basin for a large or small pool that may be nothing more than a widening of the stream.

A pool must have a fresh supply of water. Sometimes a continous drip of water from the main source keeps the pool clean and attractive at low cost, or with an electric pump or storage tank, the same water may be used again and again.

Cornell bulletin E-265 tells how to build pools for home grounds. The state college of agriculture at Ithaca, New York, will send a copy on request.

How What and Why?

This paper has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State colleges of agriculture and home economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply to your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Is Chinch-Bug Dangerous

N. N. B. writes: "I have seen a report which says that the chinch-bug has made its appearance in central New York. The report further says that this is the first time it has been found north of Long Island in the state. How much of the statement is true?"

W. E. Blauvelt of the department of entomology replies: "For a long time the chinch-bug has been present throughout New York state on its native host plants, the wild grasses. But it has never been abundant enough to cause any real damage to small grains or corn as it does in the mid-west. Apparently, climatic conditions in the state do not favor the chinch-burgs, and it is doubtful if they will ever become a real pest of grain and corn here.

"During the past two or three seasons, the chinch-bug has been unusually abundant on parts of Long Island and the lower Hudson Valley, particularaly Westchester county. They have damaged the turf of lawns and golf courses. Even there, however, where conditions are apparently more favorable for chinch-burgs than up-state, they have not caused appreciable damage to corn."

Trouble With Lilly Bulbs

Mrs. E. P., Prattsburg, writes: "I would like to know what is wrong with my Madonna lilly bulbs, and also how to treat them. They grew about one foot high this spring, then growth stopped. They looked wilted and some turned yellow. None blossomed, and soon the follage dried away. I blamed the dry weather, but had watered them frequently. I was advised to take them out of the soil for a change, as I understand this is necessary every third year.

"Some of the lillies were deformed in shape, and a few had small worms in the stem end. Some of the bulbs had a tendency to rot. If these bulbs are treated, will they be fit to replant this fall?"

Profesor C. E. F. Guterman of the department of plant pathology replies: "From your description I am certain that your Madonna lillies have been injured during the past cold winter. Many persons have lost from fifty to one hundred per cent of their bulbs because of winter injury. The stunted yellow condition of the plants, and the poor or deformed flowers are typical of winter injury.

"The rotting of the bubs is caused by organisms that have come in after the bulbs were killed. The small worms are probably scavangers following after the winter injury.

"It may be advisable to dig your bulbs during the latter part of August. After dividing them, they should be replanted in fresh, well-fertilized soil. Since the Madonna lilly does not form stem roots, the bulbs should be planted so that the tops are about an inch below the surface of the soil. This lilly needs good drainage. Place a handful of sand beneath each bulb to provide that drainage."

". . . . . It is so hot. We haven't had any rain yet and everything looks bluer than I ever in my life saw before. All the gardens dried up and we are living like we do in the winter, beans and dry stuff, although we haven't anything canned. Our potatoes didn't even make as much as we planted. You just can't imagine how dry everything is. Even the forest trees are dying on the hillsides. Fred is going to cut up the corn right away and perhaps save some for fodder although the cows won't hardly eat it. It has no juice in it. Everything in the garden is dried up and gone. We got a few onions and put our cabbage up as kraut. Dad is over at a meeting in the City Park tonight. They are explaining about the government buying the cattle. We are going to have to sell our cows for we haven't any pasture and they aren't bringing in enough to feed themselves. It is costing us so much to feed our little pigs, we were so proud of, that we are going out tomorrow and butcher them and can them up. They weigh about 70 or 80 pounds apiece. I guess we have eight to kill. We are going to put them in the ice plant to cool. They won't be fat but they will make nice sausage . . . . . We butchered five of the pigs and brought them to the ice plant. We are going to cut up the ones we killed today and can them. We could have sold some of the meat but the tax is $2.00 a head and so we will eat all we can and what we can't we'll can. . . . . Nearly everyone around here will require government aid in one form or another to get through the winter."

From the above letter a very true picture of the condition of the farmers in the drought areas can be drawn. Some are even worse off. After the soaking rain we had all day Sunday here in Addison it is hard to visualize the extremely dry conditions that exist in those areas with temperatures of from 98 to 115 degrees. There is no relief possible. Even now a good soaking rain would be of little benefit so far as helping most of the crops is concerned. It would, however, do much to bring relief from the heat for the people and the live stock. This winter a great many will suffer from hunger because o fthe crop and garden failures, unless some means of feeding them is provided.

Let us be thankful we have been spared extremely dry weather such as some other sections have endured.

PREPARE CATTLE FOR STATE FAIR

Good Show Animals are in Good Condition, S. H. Work Points Out

The wise feeder does not go to extremes in putting fat on dairy cattle to show at the state fair, says S. H. Work of the department of animal husbandry at Cornell. A reasonable amount of fat is an advantage, he adds, and promotes an attractive appearance.

"This can be gained by using a small daily amount of a mixture made up of equal parts of barley, oats and ban with one-third part of linseed meal. The linseed is valuable in the mixture because of its tonic and conditioning effects."

Good show animals are in good condition, but not too fat, if future usefulness is expected from them, Mr. Work states. They are trained to lead and obey slight tugs on the halter, and when standing, the cattle take a natural pose that shows them off to advantage.

Good grooming is esential. Each animal should be given a new dress which can be accomplished by a thorough hand massage to loosen up the skin and to make it pliable. This should be followed by a good hand rub. Long projecting hairs thae result in unevenness of lines should be cut. Likewise the coarse hairs around the base of the horns should be trimmed.

The Horns should also be taken down with a metal scraper, a file and some sandpaper or emery cloth Mr. Work advises. Good showmanship, he concludes, is built up on the person who is a keen observer of his animals, who is a hard and willing worker, as shown by the appearance of his animals and who has a store of patience, as shown by the training the animals have received.

safety model bull pen recently installed on the Smith farm, explained that the safety bull pen provided the best means of maintaining in service well-bred bulls of mature age with absolute safety to animals and keepers. The exercise lot he said, keeps the bull in good physical condition at all times.

The stable ventilation, Prof. Goodman added, removes the foul, moist air from the dairy stable and is an especially good investment because it prevents the rotting of timbers.

Prof. Brownell

Prof. S. J. Brownell, also of the agricultural faculty at Cornell, spoke upon "Progress by Building". He pointed out that dairying is the basic industry of Steuben County and provides a living for more families in the county than any other line of endeavor. "Profitable dairying is dependent upon good producing herds and effective production as well as other desirable characteristics are strongly influenced by breeding", he said. He congratulated the dairy committee of the Farm Bureau for undertaking this year a better sires campaign and he prophesied that this campaign would increase the profits of the dairy farmers of the county in years to come.

C. R. White

"The Opportunity of New York State Dairymen" was the theme of a talk by C. R. White, president of the New York State Farm Bureau Federation. "The people of New York State have proven their desire to do something to help the dairy industry" he said. "The Milk Control Board has attempted to stabilize markets and to raise the price of dairy products and the state itself has recently undertaken a program to advertise milk as a means of increasing consumption. . . In the last analysis dairy farmers themselves must join together to build a more profitable dairy industry. This is something which cannot be done by other interests. In building such a program, it is necessary that dairy farmers follow closely the marketing of their products and determine on a sound program on which they can all unite."

Armstrong Wins Pitching Contest

The horseshoe pitching contest was conducted under the personal direction of C. C. Cottrell, of Cohocton, official of the American Horseshoe Pitching Association. Entrants were: N. L. Fuller, Hornell; Ray Denson, Corning; Hiram Wagner, Cohocton; Fred Armstrong, Corning; Jack Jones, Corning; Nick Benza,, Jim Estep, Ken Mourhess and Bill Hyland, all of Corning and Fred Lamont of Fremont.

First honors in the event went to Fred Armstrong who repeated his victory of last year and will again represent the county in the state elimination during Fair Week at Syracuse. Armstrong won six games and lost one. Second place was decided on points, N. L. Fuller having 150, Jones 145, Mourhess 141 and Lamont 135. Next in order were Hyland with three victories and four defeats, Benza with two victories and five defeats, and Estep with one victory and six defeats. Hiram Wagner of Cohocton and Roy Denson of Corning failed to qualify.

Plowing Match

First place in the plowing contest went to Smith Bielby of Bath by a hairline decision of the judges. Mr. Bielby's team of chestnuts, aged 18 and 19, respectively, was driven by Darwin Clark. Mr. Bielby received a Wiard walking plow as a reward for the achievement of his team and driver. Other contestants in the event were William Hadlock, driving a team owned by Edgar Dann of Addison, and Asa Moss driving a team owned by L. Whitney of Campbell. Two tons of Michigan limestone were awarded to Mr. Dann and a set of heavy bridles to Mr. Whitney. An exhibition of plowing with oxen was given by George Robinson of Presho, who brought his team of three-year-old steers which have done all the work on his 75 acre farm this year.

Stud Show

The following stallions were entered in the stud show: two pure-bred Belgians, one two-year old and a one-year old, entered by Robert Acme of Dansville; two pure-bred Percherons, 15 months old, by Morris and Marion Hutches of Bath; a pure-bred Percheron, 14 years old, and two colts, 15 months old, by Roy Thompson of Savona; a four-year old Percheron, H. Baseball Game

The Wallace hard ball team drubbed the Jasper Aces, 18 to 4, in a one-sided baseball game in the afternoon.

The Wallace line-up included: Billy Cragg, Dockstadter, Timmerman, Smith, Gonsolus, C. Dockstadter, Thorpe, Dye and Van Wormer. The Aces sent their star hurler, Moore, to the box in an attempt to salvage a victory, but Constable Ken Kellogg's boys were out to win and were not to be denied.

"Tommy Hal" Runs as of Yore

Jerry Sullivan's prize thoroughbred pacer "Tommy Hal" retained his unmarred record by romping home an easy winner in the horse race. "Tommy" had won the event handily on three previous occasions over on the Fair grounds track at Bath but was not entered a year ago. Considerable apprehension arose among close followers of turf events when it was learned that Mr. Sullivan had consented on only short notice to permit "Tommy's" entry in the race and that the redoutable steed was being permitted to run with seemingly insufficient preparation for a gruelling combat.

The proud owner, however, confidently led "Tommy" to the startline and without a sign of trepidation motioned "Juney" Scott to take the mount. Jerry's confidence was vindicated for "Tommy" stepped out ahead of the field and was never pressed.

This feature was organized by Wayne Manchester, Dairymen's League representative, A. E. Scudder and Robert Dann of Painted Post.

Home Bureau Completes Useful Summer Work

An unusual feature of the Home Bureau program was the work that has been carried on during the summer. Units requesting help on canning all kinds of foods have had demonstrations showing the latest and best methods of preserving fruits, vegetables and meats. These demonstrations were given by Mrs. C. C. Cornue of Avoca who had special training at two state-wide training schools held at Ithaca last summer and early this summer. Meetings have been well attended and many questions have been answered by the work. These meetings were open to the public.

During the past few weeks county women have been taking advantage also of the training schools being held in the various kinds of chair seating. The lessons were given to local leaders in a number of communities and these leaders will repeat the work in their own locality. Methods of chair seating taught include the use of rush, splint and cane.

The following women in this part of the county have received the training: Addison, Mrs. Charles Levi and Mrs. Earl Beatty; Jasper, Mrs. F. W. Wood; Troupsburg, Mrs. Hiram Bennett and Mrs. Roy Plaisted; Painted Post, Mrs. R. D. Allen and Mrs. Frank Cutler.

Milk Campaign Highly Praised

Editorial Comment Lauds Move To Increase Milk Consumption and Thereby Rid Industry of Prevailing Surplus.

Albany, N. Y. — Resounding editorial approval has greeted New York State's adventure in advertising to increase the consumption of milk and cream.

The State Legislature appropriated $500,000 to finance the pioneer venture. New York is the first state in the Union to undertake such a task, using methods already tested in industrial and commercial co-operative advertising.

Increased consumption of fluid milk wil lhave a twofold effect: building up public health and gaining new income for the dairy industry. Neither reason would have been sufficient in itself, but the combination inspired ardent support in Governor Herbert H. Lehman.

Charles H. Baldwin, commissioner of agriculture and markets, was one of the first persons to consider the advertising proposal as one of merit. Thorough study finally convinced him the advertising pragram coupled with publicity and educational efforts, would restore milk consumption to its pre-depression normal.

Newspapers immediately welcomed the campaign as the salvation of the dairy industry and a forward-looking measure tempering public health to a new high degree. Sample editorial comment incluuded:

The Rochester Democrat-Chronicle — The milk industry of New York State has in its hands a powerful leverage for increasing consumption of its product, and thereby freeing itself from most of its troubles."

"This expenditure should prove one of the best investments New York ever made," said the Rochester Times-Union.

"There has been much talk about the overproduction of milk," the editorial continued. "There has been no overproduction. Give every boy and girl the minimum amount of milk they need for health and there will be a scarcity, not a surplus."

IDAHO FOLKS VISITING AT NEILSON HOME

S. R. Johnson of Idaho is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Neilson of Goodhue Lake. Mr. Johnson reports business as "slow" in the western mountain state. Although crops depend upon irrigation in that section, lack of snow fall last winter in the mountains cut irrigation water to a minimum and vegetation has suffered. Mr. Johnson reported the drought condition through the middle west to Illinois, have not been over estimated.

King Neptune Whiffs The Sunday Games

No Games Played As Soaking Rain Throws Muddy Blanket Over Vicinity Diamonds

Heavy rainfall throughout this region of the Southern Tier blotted out all games in the Tri-County and Little Six circuits last Sunday afternoon. The Addison Tri-Cos, fresh from their victory over Lawrenceville the day before, were snapping at the bit, eager to hang up their ninth straight at the expense of the Knoxville aggregation. Hordes of Freeman fans were preparing to invade Tuscarora Field, confident that the beginning of the long-hoped-for new day would blossom forth in the first half of the double-header as Bill Bullock's charges faced Austinburg.

All battles in the Little Six were rained out and the Riverside diamond at Cameron Mills was smeared by torrents which came up the valley long before game time. Double-headers will likely be arranged to play-off most of the postponed games in both the Tri-County and Little Six.

Lawrenceville Falls, 9 to 3, As Big Mac Hurls Addison Team To Eighth Consecutive Victory

Rangy Blonde Invincible in Saturday Tilt With Tri-Co South-Section Opponents — Hewson Bags Three Safeties and Add to Hitting Laurels — Hickey, Heidrick, Young, With Two Apiece, In Charmed Circle—Toby Pitches Well for Lawrenceville.

Addison swamped the Lawrenceville Tri-County League team on the High School diamond Saturday afternoon to the tune of 9 to 3 and thereby won their eighth straight game, without a defeat. Hard clean hitting in the early innings gave Addison a commanding lead and Walt McDermott in the box for the locals just breezed along putting on the steam when the visitors got a man on base and was never in any serious trouble. Mac had his speed working and Lawrenceville could do nothing with his delivery. Toby pitched for the visitors and deserved better than the score would show, several unlucky breaks adding much to his undoing. Hewson lead the attack with three hits, while Phil Hickey had two long distance wallops to his credit. Heidrick, Riffle and Young also connected safely twice each. Addison played their usual fielding game. Heidrick and Young divided the catching job and both did well, not a Lawrencville man stealing a base. Addison committed not only petit but grand larceny to the tune of eight clean steals, which figured considerably in the result.

A scratchy single, a walk and a double by Mowrey sent the visitors off in the lead, but Hicky's triple, a clean drive by Heidrick and Riker's drive to left for two sacks, put Addison ahead in the last of the inning. Lawrenceville came back with another counter in the second on a single and two errors. Addison had then fooled around enough and proceeded to bat around and sew the game up in the third. Hewson, Heidrick, Riffle and Young contributed drives to this party while Grange negotiated a walk and Riker reached first on a passed ball. The result was four markers. There was another upheaval in the fifth for three more Addison runs. Hopper and Hickey both doubled as the main wallops in this party, while Hewson chipped in another single and Grange did likewise. Also there were a few stolen bases in all this hilarity. A walk and a couple of singles, one very scratchy gave the visitors their last tally in the seventh. They tried desperately to rally in the eighth, but McDermott steamed in a few and the rally ended in the catcher's mit, as McCoy swung wildly at one of Mac's streaks of lightening.

The score follows:

FLIGHTS FROM THE BIRDHOUSE . . By Rev. J. V. AXTELL

FISHIN'

This One to Convey My Interest in the Personnel of the Addison Fish and Game Club

The summer was well advanced, the weather was getting hot and the Judge was getting weary.

For eleven months he had been facing, with little respite, the sordid side of humanity, hearing cases that disclose one citizen's dislike and sometimes hatred for his neighbor; the wronged who had appealed to the courts for redress; he had looked down from the judicial desk upon the faces of the misdemeanant, the criminal and the misanthrope; he had participated in the drab, daily routine of court procedure; had been master of fairness to all litigants and to the attorneys who depended upon him to keep them confined to the case at hand. And now he was tired, so tired that the stories and bickerings of the court attendants in the hotel lobbies and the sight of leather-bound books with gold labels on black patches bored him.

So one sweltering Friday when he took off his judicial robe, he thought of his Duxbak suit, his fly-book and rod, and a certain trout stream in the Adirondacks and said to himself, "If I am not in Bill Boller's camp by bed time tomorrow night, all means of transportation will go out of commission."

Sure enough the following day the hangers-on at the Trading Post and the summer folk were telling that the Judge had been seen driving into Bill's place and how Bill had told his old friend that the river was just right and he had come to camp at the best time of the season.

Now Bill's camp had several attractions. First, the camp itself, built of peeled spruce logs with comfortable beds and a fire place in the main living room. Second Mrs. Boller's culinary art provided, so far as possible, from the meats and fruits of the wilds and served in quantities and style that delight the nature-lover to the fullest extent. Third, there was Bill, himself. Experienced guide and woodsman and prince of entertainers with an inexhaustible supply of hunting and fishing stories and woods yarns that he always gave as, "an experience I had myself". Nobody ever detected just where fact ended and fiction began in these stories, nor did anybody care. Intermingled with these tales were original theories and quaint philosophies concerning most of human interests, and of all his clients the Judge knew best how to lure them out of the deep pools of the old guide's mental stream.

For example, His Honor would mention that a hunter in his home town claimed that no matter how cold the weather might be, if the snow was not too deep the deer wintered well. Then Bill would drawl out his own opinion and clinch its soundness with "An experience I had myself". So the entertainment began and the Judge had only to listen and smoke. So wherever the Judge cast Bill rose to the lure.

On the morning after his arrival Bill told the Judge of a big trout that had been located in the pool known as Charley's Rock and remarked how proud he would be if his guest captured that big fellow that was estimated to weigh at least three pounds if he did an ounce. Then followed suggestions as to bait and approach to the pool and another rich personal experience that happened several years ago at the same place in the river. His judicial guest showed every sign of being intensely moved by the prospect of catching that mammoth trout, so much so that he told Bill that if he would get him the bait he might go up and try his luck when he had taken a nap after lunch. So Mrs. Boller served lunch and the Judge went to his room. The breeze sailed in through the harbor of the window, loaded to the gunwales with the scent of balsam and other sedatives it had shipped and the weary member of the bar gave it clearance and paid for it in sleep. Two o'clock came and Bill despaired of the Judge's going out on the stream, relit his pipe and strolled out to the Trading Post and while he was gone the Judge woke up and asked for Bill. He went over town after him and soon they came sauntering back smoking the Judge's cigars, Bill telling an actual experience that "happened to myself" to one who was filling his mental creel.

So the afternoon trailed lazily on and dark came and Mrs. Boller announced supper. And all this time Bill's noted guest had been indolently whittling sticks merely to make shavings and abandoning himself to his host's droll experiences. In the mean-time the big three-pounder lolled away in the pool at Charley's Rock and the jurist's fly-rod neatly reposed in its case.

Yet the following winter the judge entertained his friends with stories and fancies he claimed he had heard when on a two week's "fishin' trip in the Adirondacks". Such conduct on the part of a son of Isaak Walton stirs the blood of an enthusiastic angler. But the Judge went fishing surely and he caught what he went after which was mostly Bill.

Mansfield to Tackle Addison Here Friday

two decades ago, is manager of the Mansfield team and will be anxious to show his former neighbors that he has a first class ball team. Kelly, up until last year a Texas League and Three I player, is captain of the Mansfield team and plays short stop.

Don Grange or Walt McDermott will pitch for Addison. Both are now in first class condition and can be depended on to make the visitors travel. The regular Addison line-up will be on the job, including Young, Hewson, Hickey, Riker and Heidrick, infielders, and Grange, Riffle, Hadlock and Hoyt in the outer defenses. Robbins or Kellogg will catch and George Hopper will be on hand for relief pitching duty. The game will be called at 3:00 o'clock sharp and a big crowd should be on hand. Addison has now won their last eight straight games and surely deserve the support of every base ball enthusiast in Addison and vicinity.

Woodhull and Jasper To Clash in Playoff Battle for Little Six Title

First-Half Honors to Be Decided on Jasper Battleground This Saturday Afternoon — Hotaling or Daily to Oppose Moore on Mound—Both Teams to present Strongest Line-ups.

All roads lead to the Jasper ball park next Saturday afternoon for the big playoff between Art Gee's Woodhull Invincibles and Bob Drake's Jasper Aces. To the winner will go the first half championship of the Little Six.

Pitching selections have not been announced but it is likely that the Woodhull pilot will send either Hotaling or Merle Daily to the mound in what may prove to be the most important contest of the year for both teams. Horton, former backstop of classy Rochester Blue Ribbon semi-pro aggregation, will be back of the plate for the Invincibles. The inner and outer works will be guarded by seasoned warriors whose consistent play has kept Woodhull in the running throughout the season to date. Harley House, a veteran of many bristling campaigns in the Canisteo Valley, will be at the initial sack. Hotaling or Daily will be at second, Gerald Olin at short and Bob Elliott at the hot corner. Earl Mosher will be left, Munson in center and Hal Baldwin in right.

Manager Bob Drake is expected to stake his pitching fortunes on the steady arm of Leo Moore, a starboard hurler, who has been mowing down opposing batsmen at a steady gait all summer. Lyle Whipple will be at the receiving end of Moore's shoots. R. Drake will be at first, Van Skiver at second, Waight at short and Schoonover at third. Woodward, Burdette Drake and Walrath will cavort in the garden.

The game will start promptly at 2:00 o'clock. Corbin will umpire.

Wheeler & Woolsey Traveling Knights in "Cockeyed Cavaliers"

Bert Wheeler's "taking" ways lead him and Robert Woolsey to hilarious adventures in "Cockeyed Cavaliers", their latest starring joyfilm coming to the Avon Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Laid during the Middle Ages, the story finds Wheeler and Woolsey burlesquing the era when wassail and knighthood were in flower. In this RKO-Radio Picture, during their cross-country vagabonding, Bert annexes the appurtenances of the royal physicians enroute to attend the Duke of Weskit; and the roving pair is joined by Mary Ann, a poor girl eluding the Duke's marriage offer.

At the Duke's palace, Bert falls for Mary Ann while Bob fancies the noble's niece Genevieve. After curing the Duke with veterinary methods, the romances are jarred by Weskit and Genevieve's husband. The fun proceeds madly, melodiously and mirthfully climaxed by a guffa-rousing wild boat hunt.

Mark Sandrich directed "Cockeyed Cavaliers", speeding the story with song, dance and comedy in uninterrupted continuity. Thelma Todd and Dorothy Lee provide the romantic element. Val Burton and Will Jason wrote the popular melodies "I Love to Dilly Dally" and "I Went Hunting".

William Morseman and children and Lawrence Oakes of Northrup Hill called on his son Claude Morseman and family Monday.

He called attention to the fact that New York State was in debt only to the extent of 185 million dollars in 1923 at the close of the last Republican administration, that of Governor Miller. Since then, he stated the debt has grown by leaps and bounds until it now approximates 525 million dollars on which taxpayers are now paying more than 35 million dollars a year in interest alone.

Assemblyman Wilson Messer spoke regarding the special session of the Legislature." The next Legislature will have some very serious questions to face and solve" he said. "It is of the most vital importance that a Republican governor and a Republican Legislature be elected. In no other way can the crushing tax load be lifted".
